Battered Submarine F-4 Shown at Full Length With Her Pontoon

This notable photograph in the remarkable series the Star-Bulletin is publishing of the submarine F-4 in drydock shows the vessel at full length, with five of the six big pontoons in view. These pontoons were submerged, then lifted with air, and the submarine thus lifted from the bottom of the sea off the harbor. A section of the curious crowd that watched the drydocking of the submarine is also shown. STAR-BULLETIN STAFF PHOTO. COPYRIGHT, 1915, KODAKGRAPH.

(Special to the Nippo Jiji) died at 11 o'clock last night at his country villa at Okitsu, where he has been confined for the last few days suffering with nephritis.

the diplomatic circles of the world as one of the four "great" or elder states-

Shogun government and a power behind the throne to be reckoned with almost as much as the emperor himself.

In 1868 with the passing of the Shogun government a great part of the way of Inouye passed away. He was then a young man of 37 in the height of vigor, and he refused to be kept out of his country's ruling voices despite the fact that the Mikado had now arrogated to himself and the so-called popular party an absolute authority which he delegated to whomsoever he pleased.
